

STRENGTHS & OPPORTUNITIES

- He has a natural willingness to cooperate with others, he is a great listener and has a positive and amiable approach
- He has a highly motivated and ambitious style that will drive his work ethic and levels of commitment. When he makes a commitment, he is true to his word and will work tirelessly to achieve success

CHALLENGES & THREATS

- He is not naturally analytical and often quick decisions will be based on intuition and 'gut feelings'
- He may not always raise concerns with management. As such it is often difficult to notice issues until they become major problems

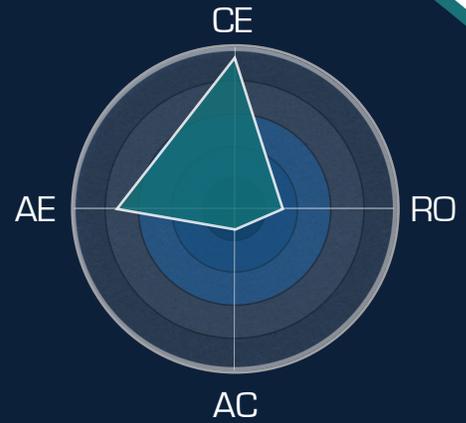

CONCLUSION

Neil, as an Accommodator, is naturally outgoing and comfortable in and around others. As the name suggests, Neil is able to 'accommodate' or adapt to changing situations and thrives in a fast paced environment. The clear predominance here is a passion for action – the practical completion of tasks and a constant drive to achieve. In doing so, however, he won't sacrifice the quality of what he produces and he will pride himself on both his work rate and the quality of his achievements.

Neil's strengths suggest he is an extremely personable individual who loves myriad of challenges that life brings. He possesses the combination of energy, enthusiasm and a commitment for excellence that will make him a very valuable asset to any organization. Neil has a very high work ethic and will not be fazed by having to work long hours.

He greets each new day with an enthusiasm and a passion to make the most of every opportunity that comes his way and each new person he meets. He is impatient for action and has a highly energetic and effervescent style. He enjoys meeting new people and his positive and energizing approach will quickly win them over.

He is friendly and amiable in style, and will want to feel that he is accepted by others before he can feel comfortable in a situation. His style is open to others' ideas, and unlike many communicative profiles, he also possesses receptive listening abilities, so that others can often find him comforting and supportive.
